Dear Sirs and or Madams,
Please consider carefully before deciding to limit local coverage by the new satellite radio stations. The reason I chose to spend $10.00 a month to listen to the radio is because the current over the air radio broadcasts are becoming limited in music choices, news, and the content is interrupted with heavy doses of commercials. You should not reward the traditional broadcaster's poor service by limiting the service of those using new technology. Hopefully the AM / FM broadcasters will improve their service if they finally receive a different kind of competition. I believe there will always be a place for traditional radio as there is for traditional television vs cable TV.
Please do not limit XM or Sirius from giving their paying customers less listening choices just because one aging group of broadcasters feels threatened by a new type of competition.
Thank you for your time and consideration,
Robert Denver
